The Indian Arts and Crafts Act DOES NOT state that you must be North American Indian to make craft items. It DOES state that if you are not able to document your status, you must disclose so. The Indian Arts and Crafts Act is largely a Federal Consumer Protection Law, so that items that are displayed for sale as North American Indian made craft items are made by North American Indians. A brochure from the U.S. Department of Interior is enclosed for your review. Based on this description, please check the appropriate box below.

- North American Indian, selling handmade craft items
- North American Indian, selling some handmade craft items, some manufactured items
- North American Indian, selling manufactured items
- Non North American Indian, selling handmade craft items made by North American Indians (must be able to document craftsman and tribal affiliation)
- Non North American Indian, selling handmade craft items made by non North American Indians
- Non North American Indian, selling manufactured items

Please be advised that at no time will SEMII permit vendors to sell dream catchers, medicine wheels or other similar items that are manufactured from countries located outside of North America. Please also be advised that North American Indian status DOES NOT include Metis' or South American status.

Please attach a copy of your tribal card, status card or band letter and return this document to SEMII at the address listed above. You will be issued a VENDOR CARD from SEMII to be used at all events approved for.
